Drawing heavily from Scripture—particularly passages in the Gospels and prophetic texts—Munroe emphasizes that God's kingdom is not a distant promise but an active reality unfolding through faith, obedience, and spiritual discernment. The principles teach that believers are co-heirs and co-regents in this kingdom, called to live with divine purpose, authority, and moral integrity. This perspective shifts traditional views of faith from passive belief to active participation in God's redemptive plan. Munroe's teachings break down the kingdom into three essential dimensions: divine sovereignty, human responsibility, and spiritual empowerment.
